

Building a successful SDR Process

By Grant Glazer

As an SDR, the objective is to schedule as many Qualified Discovery Calls as you can for your organization's New Business team. With this guide, you will learn the best methods to calling prospects and asking them qualifying questions to determine a good product fit.

In this guide, we will be looking at an example company that uses Salesforce as their CRM and Marketo for automated emailing and lead scoring. Below is how they have designated how to organize those leads.

Managing your Salesforce Queue

Lead Status Key

Open – Pre MQL Lead which nobody owns, open to be contacted

MQL – Marketing Qualified Lead (The prospect has been pre-qualified for reachout by tracked actions in Marketo such as whitepaper and webinar downloads) Contact Immediately

NR 1 – No Response 1, leave message and follow up with the NR1 Email

NR 2 – No Response 2, leave message and follow up with the NR2 Email

NR 3 – No Response 3, leave message and follow up with the NR3 Email

NR 4 – No Response 4, leave final message and follow up with the NR4 Email

NR 5 – No Response 5, Unused unless you want to continue following up

Pursuing – The contact has not engaged, but you would like to continue attempting to contact

Engaged – The contact has responded positively with a current or future project, and will be monitored as a future opportunity

Recycle / Nature – No response from customer, no active project, just researching, ect. Leads in this queue stay in an automated mailing list and are able to MQL after more activity In the future

Disqualified – The contact asked to be removed from our list, or has no interest in the company at all

Bad Data – Bad phone number or email / unable to reach. Send Bad Number email if possible

PQL / Referred – Partner Qualified lead (If a duplicate is a PQL, do not transfer. Refer lead to the partner)

Managing your workflow in Salesforce:

In your SDR Queue, you should “Double Touch” a prospect every three business days as they progress through the No Response (NR) cycle (NR1, NR2, NR3, NR4, Recycle No Response)

With Every “No Response”, you should follow up with an email to perform at least a “Double Touch”.

“Double Touch” Is a Phone call / Voicemail and a Follow up email

1. To manage when you last performed an activity, sort by the “Last Activity” Field
2. Select a lead that is unread or has not been touched in 3 business days
3. Open each lead, one at a time by right clicking and selecting – “Open in new tab”
4. Place a phone call to the prospect, and leave a message if there is no answer.
5. If call was answered, take sales notes and ask qualifying questions
6. If voicemail was left, follow up with an email (See Appendix D)

NOTE: Top performers often “Triple touch”, leveraging social media as well as a method of communication.

Best times to call prospects

1. Look at the local time when calling prospects. You want to think as if you are in their shoes. The best times to reach prospects are 9:00am - 11:30am Local Time and from 1:30pm - 4:30pm
 - a. Make EST Calls between - 8:00am - 9:00am PST, 10:30am – 1:30pm PST (PST +3 hours)
 - b. Make CST Calls between - 8:00am - 10:00am PST, 11:30am – 2:30pm PST (PST +2 hours)
 - c. Make MST Calls between - 9:00am - 10:00am PST, 12:30pm – 3:30pm PST (PST +1 hours)
 - d. Make PST Calls between - 9:00am - 11:00am PST, 1:30pm – 4:30pm PST
2. Western European and UK leads are best reached between 8:00am - 9:00am PST

Calling a lead:

Before calling, check the following:

1. Does it look like a fake number / email? (If yes, attempt calling / put in Bad Data, if no proceed to next step)
2. Check for duplicates (make sure you check the “Email Domain” box) (If duplicates are found – merge the leads. If none are found, hit cancel) (See Appendix A) (If there is a current account – transfer the lead to the Account Owner)
 - i. Leads and contacts should NEVER be deleted outright in Salesforce, if there are duplicates then they should be merged.
 - ii. All leads/contacts in Salesforce are considered duplicates ONLY if they have the exact same email address.
3. Look at Campaign History / Marketo Sales Insight for Interesting Moments or Web Activity to get an idea of what caused them to MQL. (See Appendix B)

Call the lead – Follow the call script

1. If there is no answer, leave a message, if the prospect answers, ask about their project requirements.
2. Change Lead Status to NR 1(2,3,4) and follow up with an email. If the lead responds and is qualified, change Lead Status to Engaged and proceed to the next steps.
3. If this is a future project – fill out Next Steps
4. If this is an active project, and fulfills the set qualification criteria, fill out the project information in the CRM system in the Sales Notes section
5. Schedule a time for the prospect to speak with an Account Executive (AE). Be sure to check their calendars and schedule 30 minutes in an open slot for the conversation.
6. Click “Convert” in Salesforce to transform this lead into an Opportunity
7. Change the Opportunity Owner to the Appropriate Account Executive based on set sales territories/deal size.

Call template:

1. Hi Customer Name this is Your Name Here calling from Company Name. I’m just giving you a call today to follow up on your previous interest in our Product and I just wanted to reach out and see if I can answer any questions about Company Name for you. I will try calling again in a couple of days and will also reach out to you by email so you have my contact info. If you would like to speak with me sooner, I can be reached at Phone #.
2. Hi Customer Name, this is Your Name Here from Company Name trying to get in back touch with you. I left you a voice mail last week to see if I can help answer any questions about Company Name, or our Product, or just provide you with some personalized advice for your upcoming project. I’ll send you another email just to float it to the top of your inbox, but if you’d like to get in touch with me sooner, I can be reached directly at Phone #.
3. Hey Customer Name, this is Your Name Here from Company Name calling again. I’ve left you a few messages now, but I don’t want to give up on hearing back from you. I originally called you to learn more about your upcoming project and see how we can help over here at Company Name with our Product. Give me a call back at Phone # when you have the chance. Thanks!
4. Customer Name, this is Your Name Here from Company Name just reaching out one last time. I haven’t heard back from you yet from the previous emails and voicemails I’ve left. I just wanted to try to reach you on the phone to hear more about your upcoming project and learn a little bit more about your interest in Company Name. I’ll send you one last email just so you have my contact information, but you can reach me directly at Phone #. I look forward to our future conversation.

Creating an Outlook Appointment

The Outlook Calendar view is helpful for scheduling discovery calls with the Account Executives.

To Schedule an appointment, select the date from the Calendar in the upper right, and find an open 30 minute slot to propose to the prospect in the appropriate Account Executive's row.

To Add calendars to your "Schedule View" click the "Open Calendar" and select the desired people. To create groups, click the Calendar Groups button.

The screenshot shows the Outlook interface with the calendar view selected. The top right shows the date and time. The left sidebar shows the calendar view. The main area shows a calendar grid for Thursday, November 19, 2015. A yellow box highlights the date 19 in the upper right calendar. Another yellow box highlights the "Open Calendar" button in the top right. A third yellow box highlights the "Calendar Groups" button in the top right. A fourth yellow box highlights a 30-minute slot in the calendar grid for Matt.

When Creating an Outlook Appointment for a discovery call with the Account Executive use the template below. After reviewing that the information is correct, click "Send"

The screenshot shows the Outlook appointment form. The top bar shows the appointment details. The main area shows the appointment details. A yellow box highlights the "Send Update" button in the top left. Another yellow box highlights the "Send" button in the bottom right. The appointment details include: To: Matt, Subject: Conversation with Matt, Location: Matt will call Trevor at, Start time: Wed 11/18/2015 2:00 PM, End time: Wed 11/18/2015 2:30 PM. The body of the appointment contains a template for a discovery call invitation.

Use merge fields to personalize your email content. You can add substitute text to any merge field. Substitute text displays only if the merge record does not contain data for that field. Enter substitute text after a comma in the merge field, for example, {!Contact.FirstName,Sir or Madam}. When you save the template, the merge field will appear in the email body of the template with the following syntax: {!NullValue(Contact.FirstName,"Sir or Madam")}. Reachout #5 (Final Reachout)

Subject: Thanks for reaching out to Company Name {!Contact.FirstName}

Hello {!Contact.FirstName},

In reviewing some outstanding business today, I will be removing you from my current follow-ups for the time being.

It seems like you had some passing interest in our product, or wanted to learn more about Company Name. In either case, I have sent a few emails your way and have not yet received a response. I will assume at this point that your questions have been answered or your interest has diminished and no longer warrants follow-up.

I am happy to chat with you when you are ready to invest resources into this project.

Best of luck,
